Rheumatism Cured

AND

As A Proof Notice the Results.

Capt. Stevens of the Boston Lancers says:

BOSTON, March 9, 1875.

Prof. Alphonzo Haller

Dear Sir—Accept my lasting gratitude for the benefit which I have received from the use of the wonderful medicine called the

Diamond Rheumatic Cure

For several years past I have been subject to very severe attacks of Inflammatory Rheumatism, and was recently taken with such more severe than its predecessors. The last sensation from this terrible disease I attribute to my exposure while a student of medical science in Cambridge was called in, but no relief was experienced, I was in a low state of mind and body, and recovery was despaired of. When at last I failed, sufficient to discern what was transpiring about me, I learned that my wife was also afflicted with the same fearful disease. A friend, learning of our helpless condition, brought to our knowledge of the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE. By the taking of two doses of this invaluable remedy she was entirely relieved; then I commenced to take it, and rapidly improved until in about a week I was completely restored. Since then I have had another attack and was once disabled, but no longer fear Rheumatism or its baneful effects. To all who are suffering and in need of a certain cure by the use of this remedy, I say you may confidently send with the same fearful disease. By the taking of two doses of this invaluable remedy she was entirely relieved; then I commenced to take it, and rapidly improved until in about a week I was completely restored. Since then I have had another attack and was once disabled, but no longer fear Rheumatism or its baneful effects. To all who are suffering and in need of a certain cure by the use of this remedy, I say you may confidently send with the same fearful disease. You can mention my name either publicly or privately in the interests of mankind. I am willing to be referred personally by any one desiring to ask me the absolute facts from me, and I feel fully convinced that the thousands who are suffering as I have will find from the effects of Rheumatism, as I found it, but know how readily a relief and cure can be had, would at once send for the remedy. I am happy to testify and would bless with benedictions of praise the name of the physician who gave me the blessing that truly effective remedy,—the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

Dramatic, grammatical yours,

T. J. STEVENS,

10 Elm St., Cambridgeport, and 6 Cambridge St., Boston.

The undersigned may not be known to come the most skeptical individuals that a short time has been discovered in the

Diamond Rheumatic Cure.

The proprietor of this medicine had studied the seats of pain in regions of London and Paris for the last twenty years, making rheumatism a specialty, and the prescription from which this remedy is now made up he has never used in the treatment of these diseases. In simple cases a sanitimeter one to three bottles. In the most chronic case it is sure to do the work in the cog of four of the bottles. By this the most simple remedy hundreds of dollars are saved to those who can least afford to spend them, and needlessly suffer by the purchase of useless prescriptions.

Any sufferer who reads this paragraph shall receive one bottle on this receipt, according to the instructions in the package, and it will not take long to prove to him that I never used in the treatment of these diseases. THE BOTHERED ORGANS

From the Providence Journal.

The Boston Post is as irresistibly fascinated by the platform and speeches of the Ohio Democrats as is the moth by the candle. It cannot keep out of the glare and it cannot come within it without scorching its wings. If the Post in this matter would only indulge in that silence which is both golden and safe, it would save itself from what must be an extraordinary waste of nervous energy, and retain its established reputation for sound sense if not for correct doctrine. The Post is moved to speak of the speech of Governor Allen of Ohio on his tour, asserts that the Republican party is responsible for greenbacks. Of this we have heretofore spoken sufficiently, but the Post having waded in finds itself in a mess. It cannot well stop short with the simple enunciation of an undisputed fact, to be so solemn over what every one admits is not exactly in its usual vein, but still further progress is neither advisable nor useful. However,

Returning were as bad as to go o'er, and so the Post ventures upon an analysis. It soon brings up on the declaration of Governor Allen that bonds, greenbacks and money at large however made, and by whomsoever put forth, is alike based upon credit and therefore that if it is wanted, a thousand millions more of paper dollars will be worth just as much as those already printed. The Post shrinks a little from this view. It does not go quite to the bottom of the matter but it suggests and modestly, that there is a difference between the bonds of Government and the greenbacks in this that the bonds are voluntarily put forth, while the greenbacks are a forced loan. And then the Post flies the track so far as the Ohio doctrine is concerned. It does indeed show that an increase of irredeemable currency would add nothing to the wealth of the country, as it would be based upon no new value, but it says that Governor Allen does not tamper with the plain principles of finance, which is pretty "cheeky" in the Post, and it declares that Mr Pendleton concedes his faith in hard money as the only money.

Now there are two points to be considered. First, the Post, in its inner consciousness and from intelligent conviction, is in favor of a speedy resumption of specie payments and desires that every step in national legislation shall be in that direction. Hence when it comments upon the Ohio platform, and the Ohio demonstrations on the stump, it cannot wholly, nor does it wish to conceal its real views, but secondly it feels a political necessity to bolster up the Democrats of Ohio as represented by the State ticket. It does therefore what must be exceedingly distasteful to it; it throws the mouth of a false rhetoric over the ignorance or the hypocrisy of Allen and Pendleton. These two say in effect, thus "The present irredeemable currency of the country is a sham, a burden, a fraud upon the poor; the Republicans have made something out of it; now, while talking hard money on one side of the mouth, let us talk as much money as you want on the other and so holding to the true theory in words, make its application acceptable to those who either do not know, or do not care for correct theory and practice. The Post, in trying to follow suit, makes rather a botch of its steering.

The damage by excessive rains is quite general in the South and Southwest, and melancholy and discouraging reports come from all quarters. The injury to the crops in some localities is irreparable, while the different railroads suffer considerably. The Atlantic and Pacific Railroad bridge over Spring river, at Verona, Mo., has been swept away, and hundreds of yards of track damaged. Trains will not be able to pass for several days. The loss in property cannot be estimated.

DELEGATES ELECTED. At the Republican caucus in Lagrange on the 28th inst., Jacob Bemis and Philay B. Soule were elected delegates to the District Congressional Convention. At the caucus in Veazie Friday evening, Levi Blodgett and Charles A. Rollins were chosen. All these delegates with those chosen at Newport, are said to be favorable to the nomination of Mr. Plaisted.

The back-bone of Emery's rooster must ache terribly by this time. With his head and neck thrown back at an angle of forty-five degrees, he has had his mouth open and tongue run out for the last four or five weeks. He seems to be crowing on the same principle that the Irishman laughed when he thought to himself how thoroughly he would rub the bull's nose in the dirt when he should hold him by the horns and yank him hither and thither at will. After having a mighty good laugh all to himself, he proceeded to take hold of the animal but was immediately raised on the bull's horns and thrown over a five-rail fence with great violence. As he got up and limped off he exclaimed: "Och, and it was a mighty foine thing I had my laugh before-hand." When Gen. Connor is elected next fall by a good majority, as he surely will be, the Commercial folks will find themselves in a position very similar to that of the Milesian above alluded to.—[Dexter Gazette.

Governor Leslie of Kentucky has been the victim of a piece of meanness which ought to cover its authors with ridicule. On a recent Saturday afternoon he and several friends whom he had invited to join him were playing croquet in the State House yard at Frankfort when they were served with a warrant of arrest issued from the Police Court. The charge against them was violation of the State law of 1863 to prevent injury to the State grounds the playing of any games within the square being prohibited. The law has never been enforced against any but actual depredators on the premises, and it has been customary to hold meetings and play at croquet or any innocent amusement, with the permission of the Librarian who is the custodian of the State property. The case of the Governor and his friends was duly brought before the Police Court, and tried by a jury in the case of each of the four persons, the Court refusing to permit the parties to confess judgment. The costs were thus increased. The juries found verdicts against the parties two of whom were mulcted in $1 each and two in one cent each. The matter is severely commented upon in the papers of the State.

The ladies of New York, Westchester and Kings counties have inaugurated a movement to erect a monument to the memory of Washington Irving, and they have issued an appeal to the ladies of America to co-operate with them in the work. They want $25,000, and Mr. Chas. L. Tiffany, New York, would be glad to receive contributions towards that sum. The intention is to have a colossal bust of immense proportions, to place it upon a splendid granite pedestal, and to ornament the pedestal with four bronze figures, placed in niches upon four sides of the die. The figures to be Rip Van Winkle, an old Knickerbocker and two others of Irving's original characters. The bust will be ready to exhibit at the National Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia in 1876 and after that event, will be publicly erected in Central Park in New York.

A passenger on the steamer Roman on her last voyage from Boston to Philadelphia, sends an account to the Philadelphia Bulletin of having seen a large "sea serpent" off Cape Cod on the afternoon of July 17. The monster, he says, was observed by others who were on board. Among them being a number of seafaring men, and he adds that it had been seen some time previously in that neighborhood, and arrangements were being made by the mariners of Cape Cod for its capture. The passenger says: "The creature was within four hundred yards of the steamer. As we brought our marine glasses to bear upon him, a sword fish of medium size rose to the surface and advanced to attack the object of our curiosity. When the sword fish first attacked him he reared his head, at least ten feet above the water and then dove down once more. These actions he kept repeating, so that we had a fine opportunity to scrutinize him. His head was rather flat and closely resembled that of a turtle. The fin we first observed was on the back several feet from the head, while small fins protruded on each side. The body was at least eight inches in diameter, and presented a slimy surface, covered with large coarse scales. When he raised his head out of the water seemed to fairly boil as he rapidly clove his way through the waves, so that by far the larger portion of his body must have been under the water. We estimated his length to be at least sixty feet but the pilot informed us that a few weeks previous he rose alongside the steamer Roman and they reported him to be 120 feet long."

Letters from Egypt of late date give very encouraging accounts of the progress making by the Khedive's officers in exploring and opening up the interior of Africa to civilization and commerce. Col. Long, the young American officer who made himself so famous by his daring and successful expedition to M'tesa, and who has since made equally successful explorations, has returned to Cairo, bringing back five natives of different tribes, together with many curious war weapons and implements, showing the different degrees of civilization attained. He gives a most graphic account of his adventures and discoveries and may be expected soon in Europe to make preparations for other explorations which are to be entrusted to him, to penetrate further into the heart of Africa under the Khedive's auspices. Seven steamers now ply between Khartoum and Ragaff, above which the rapids render the Nile unnavigable. The distance between Khartoum and Gordon's headquarters is more than one thousand miles. He has established lines of posts so as to keep his communication open and has made peace with the tribes with whom Baker was at war, adroitly availing himself of Abou Saoud (Baker's bet noir) in the first place and then dismissing him, thus checking the slave trade most effectually by turning its instruments to other uses. Gordon has proved a great success, and his occupation of the country has cost the government nothing, as he has made it self-sustaining by the produce he has sent Cairo. Colonel Purdy (an American officer in the Khedive's service) has reached the capital of Darfur, and reports that there is plenty of water in the Nile between that point and the point of his departure, so that the obstacle which baffled Baker seems no longer to exist. Colonel Colston (also an American officer) is pushing on probably into the interior by another route, while Mitchell, the geologist of the Gordon expedition, who is not far from Kennar, between the Nile and the Red Sea, has discovered two gold mines, formerly worked in ancient times, the shafts still open. He reports that, with modern appliances, one of these shafts could be successfully and profitably worked, what percentage of gold he has found has not been made public. In fact, the energetic Khedive, seconded by equally energetic officers, is pushing exploration and investigations of all kinds into this terra incognita with a success equal to his efforts.

The city of Chicago is probably to be made whole in regard to the million of dollars defrauded from the Treasury while it was in charge of David A. Gage. A special despatch announces that Judge Booth of the Circuit Court has decided that the bondsmen of Mr. Gage are liable for the amount, and as they represent in the aggregate much more than the sum defaulted there is a prospect that the sum will be restored. The bondsmen are William F. Tucker, a large cattle dealer in Chicago, reputed to be very rich; Albert Crosby, of the Crosby Opera House; John B. Sherman, a retired capitalist (very rich); James E. McVicker, manager of the theatre; John A. Rice, proprietor of the Tremont House; Nathaniel Wilder, a capitalist, and Geo. W. Gage, brother of the ex-Treasurer.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Some of the Ohio Democratic papers keep the platform of the party standing in their columns, with the financial planks omitted.

Henry Clay Dean is on the stump for the Democracy in Iowa, and is said to divide his hatred about equally between soap-and-water and the Republican party.

The Post's Washington despatches say that late advices from reliable sources in Alabama leave little or no room for apprehending that the Democrats will fail in the election to be held on Tuesday next for State Constitutional Convention.

The Providence Journal says: "Steady-going old Connecticut was shaken a little by an earthquake yesterday morning. We suspect that the people would rather see a full-sized earthquake'n an another Democratic Legislature like that which has just dissolved."

Mr. Pendleton is alarmed at the situation in Ohio, and evidently appreciates the fact that his party has overreached itself on the greenback inflation scheme. So he has declared himself a hard-Money man. When he kicks over the platform, and takes the stump against Sam Cary, we will accept his conversion as genuine.—Baltimore Gazette.

Hon John S. Pillsbury, the Republican candidate for Governor in Minnesota, is a native of Sutton, New Hampshire, and forty-eight years old. He was formerly connected in business at Warner, Andover, and Concord, and went West about 1854. He is a brother of Hon. George A. Pillsbury of Concord.

The Nation says of the Democratic party "That the inflationist element has been steadily gaining ground in its ranks for some years, there is now no denying. It has been kept down on the Eastern seaboard by the predominance of the commercial interest but in the West it comes nearer every month to taking entire possession of the party, and laughs at the way in which the Eastern organs fling financial history at its head."

CARD.

TO THE LADIES.

I am now manufacturing French Kid Button Boots, the best to be found in New England. These boots are really a Custom Made boot for $6.00.

The great trouble with the French Kid Boots made for the retail trade is that the uppers do not give satisfaction. One wears out much faster than the other, and frequently one part of an upper wears rough while the rest remains smooth, simply because no care is taken in selecting the parts of a skin from which to cut the uppers. Every lady has learned this from experience.

Every part of an upper should be cut from one skin and the parts so selected that the upper will wear smooth all over. I am making the finest French uppers that can be produced, fitted in the neatest manner possible, thereby turning out a faultless boot, constructed on the McComber patent last (improved), which is so strongly recommended by every one that has worn boots made on this last, and which justly merits the praise given it. The bottom stock of these boots is the finest that can be selected. Made in four widths, and for style, fit, comfort and durability their equal cannot be produced. Every pair is warranted in every respect, and I would be pleased to have the Ladies call and examine these goods, whether they wish to purchase or not.

I also make Ladies' Boots to measure when desired.

The report that several theatrical people [are] heavy losers by the failure of Duncan Sherman & Co., proves without foundation in many instances. Letters have been received from John T. Raymond, John Brougham and William Wheatly denying that they are losers.

Mr Beecher's Salary.

The Sun says that August Storrs, treasurer of Plymouth church, has paid [to] Henry Ward Beecher $30,000 as the first installment of his $100,000 salary. Two secret meetings of the Board of Trustees has been held within the past three weeks and there has been very much difference of opinion bordering almost on [dissension] as to how the remaining $70,000 shall be raised. The amount paid to [Beecher] was the surplus that the pew rents netted at the sale in January, and was his regular $20,000 salary. The [Sun] says it is somewhat authoritatively [stated] that the officials of Plymouth church [intend] to raise the $80,000 additional salary [due] to Mr Beecher by a mortgage on the Bethel.

Death Results from a Paralytic Shock.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE FUNERAL.

Marks of Respect.

The Ex-President Passes away Surrounded by his Family and Friends.

CINCINNATI, O., July 31. The Gazette's [Knoxville] special says: This morning at about 2 o'clock ex-President Johnson died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. R. Brown, formerly Mrs. Col. Stover, in Carter county, from a paralytic stroke. He had been in rather bad health since the adjournment of Congress, but nothing serious was anticipated. On Wednesday morning he left on the train for Carter's station, and from thence he went on horseback to his daughter's house, riding about 7 miles in the hot sun. Arriving there he felt very much fatigued, and about four o'clock the same afternoon his right side was paralyzed rendering him speechless. His son Frank, and his daughter, Mrs. Patterson, were at once sent for and left Greenville on Thursday. About noon Mr Johnson became conscious and recovered the partial use of his side again, but it was evident that the great commoner could not live long, and thus surrounded by his entire family and neighboring friends, he yielded up the ghost.

Arrangements for the Funeral

The excitement here and at Knoxville is intense. It is expected that a large delegation will arrive from Knoxville to attend the funeral. A public meeting will be held at the Court House to-night and arrangements made to receive visitors from abroad. The funeral takes place at Greenville Tuesday August 3. Several Masonic lodges, military companies, and civic associations from adjoining towns will join with the citizens in paying the last tribute to his remains. The body will arrive to-morrow. A great many distinguished men from all parts of the United States are sending telegrams to this place stating their desire to be present at the last sad rites. The family are greatly overcome with their sad bereavement, in which they have the sympathy of the whole community.

The news of his death in Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 30. The intelligence of the death of Andrew Johnson produces much sorrow in this city even among those politically opposed to him. His long public life in Washington had secured him many warm personal friends.

Symbols of Mourning

A telegram was sent at noon to-day from this city to Secretary Fish, now in New York, informing him of the death of Andrew Johnson. It is customary in case of the decease of an ex-President, to issue an executive order announcing the event and directing that the Departments be draped in mourning, and that during the funeral all public business be suspended.

As a mark of respect the flag was to-day displayed at half-mast over the music stand on the south front of the Executive Mansion, and also from the various public buildings in the city.

Resolutions Passed at a Meeting of Citizens

NASHVILLE, TENN., Aug 1. At a public meeting of citizens held here to-night, resolutions expressing sorrow at the death of Andrew Johnson were passed, and a committee of 100 citizens was appointed to arrange a mass meeting, to have addresses, etc.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Weavers' Strike at Fall River.

FALL RIVER, July 31. At the Spinners' meeting, held last night, it was voted to strike in three of the mills. This resolution was carried by a vote of two over two thirds. This proceeding will doubtless cause a general lock out. It is now believed that the card grinders and weavers who hold meetings this evening will vote themselves 30 days' vacation.

Body Identified

GLOUCESTER, July 31. The body found yesterday has been identified as that of Jeremiah Jones, of Salem. He was a morocco dresser, and probably died of delirium tremens. No inquest was held.

KANSAS.

Serious Fire at Parsons.

FORT SCOTT, July 30. The Daily Monitor's special from Parsons, Kansas, reports a large fire there early this morning. Loss about $25,000 with less than $100 insurance. But for a heavy rain the entire town would have been burned.

NEW YORK STATE.

The Saratoga Races.

SARATOGA, July 31. In a race for a purse of $500, two and one eighth miles, Mattie was first, Madge second, Monmouth third, Vandalite fourth and Invoice last. Time 3.31¾.

The next was a handicap hurdle race, mile heats, over four hurdles. First heat Carriboo 1, Daylight 2, Marion 3, Minnie Mace 4, Prodigal Son 5, Tipperary Gelding 6, Bullet last. Time 1.51. The second heat was won by Carriboo, Daylight second, Bullet third, Tipperary Gelding who fell over the last hurdle in the rear. Time 1.53.

THE METRIC SYSTEM. Mr. Editor: Every one ought to do what he can to aid in introducing the "Metric" or decimal system of weights and measures. The metric table which you published Saturday ought to be given not once only, but many times. NATIONAL TEMPERANCE CAMP-MEETING. The second annual Temperance Camp-meeting is to be held at Old Orchard, commencing on Thursday of the present week, to continue ten days. Those wishing to attend can go to Portland and return by the City of Richmond for one fare. It is well enough to hold the Temperance Camp-meeting at Old Orchard once or twice, but it has been suggested by friends of the cause—in which Eastern and Middle Maine is so deeply interested, and with which Bangor and other neighboring towns are so thoroughly identified,—that it would be no more than fair that the next meeting should be held at Northport, or some other grove in this section. By this means a large number of people here who would like to attend, and who cannot afford the expense of going to Old Orchard, would be able to share the same privileges as are now monopolized by Western Maine.

The Knights of Pythias Excursion.

The Knights of Pythias excursion to St. John, was one of the most successful of the season and all who participated in it returned, delighted with the very pleasant trip. The weather was all that could be desired and the parade in that city passed off excellently. The arrangements for the running of the train were perfect, every crossing was made promptly on time, and the excursionists express the utmost satisfaction with the kindness and courtesy of the railroad officials, especially Freight Agent [illegible]. At Vanceboro' the Knights found ample preparations had been made for them, and [illegible] food which the attentive waiters placed before them. At Wellsford, a delegation of the committee of arrangements of the St. John Lodges met the Knights from this city and at Carleton they were met by the two Lodges, who drawn up in a line, came to a "present" which was returned by the visiting brethren, the 62d Regiment Band which headed the St. John Lodges struck up a lively march and the entire company moved on board the ferryboat. On the Carleton side of the river the crowd was so dense that the Knights marched in almost solid column and often times the line was broken by the people obliged in too closely to fall back as the Knights approached.

The ship John Barbour lying in the vicinity was dressed in the colors of the Order and a salute was fired, both on the arrival and departure of the Bangor Knights, by order of her Captain who is a member of a Lodge in South Carolina.

On arriving, on the St. John side the streets were found to be filled with people, who had come to get the earliest possible view of the Knights on parade, as it was the first public appearance of the order in New Brunswick. A long march through the streets the bands alternately playing, was made, and the crowd throughout was so large that many times the ranks were obliged to break to get passageway. At the conclusion of the march the brethren of St. John were formed in double column in front of the Victoria Hotel, where the Bangor Knights quartered, and formed the arch of steel beneath which the visitors marched. After an elegant supper, the visiting brethren repaired to Pythian Hall, in the Academy of music building where the evening was spent in a social reunion, which was one of the pleasantest affairs to the visitors, and was enjoyed to the utmost by the hosts who were profuse in their attentions, sparing no efforts to render the enjoyment of their guests complete. At a late hour the meeting broke up, and with many expressions of good-will and wishes for pleasant weather on the morrow, the Knights separated until the morning.

They were early astir on Friday, and after breakfast, found barouches awaiting them at the door in which they were driven about in company with the St John brethren, and were shown all the points of interest about the city and suburbs, the very pleasant drive coming to an end on King's Square, where the Bangor Band gave an out-door concert which drew out a large attendance of the good people of the city. The remainder of the day up to the hour for departure was spent in social converse, and after another parade, previous to which a photograph of the Lodges was taken by Notman, the Bangor Knights in company with their hosts crossed to Carleton to take the train for home. Here cheers were given for the Knights of St. John, for the Captain of the John Barbour, and for the Bangor visitors, and with many hand-shakings and hearty expressions of good will, the company separated.

The members of the Order from this city returned with a feeling that the Knights of St John are brethren of whom they have every reason to be proud, and are profuse in their expressions of satisfaction with their very pleasant visit, which will some time be returned, and then they expect to do their best to return the many courtesies received.

Entertainments.

HYERS SISTERS' SACRED CONCERT.

Last evening the Hyers Sisters' Company gave a sacred concert at Norombega Hall under the auspices of the Ladies' Crusade. There was a very good attendance and portions of the programme were well received. By far the best solo was "Consider the Lilies," sung by Mr. King; in response to an encore he gave "Rock Me to Sleep mother" which would have been more enjoyable had the words of this familiar song been correctly given. The successful feature of the evening was the Jubilee songs, in which the quartette excels, and for which repeated encores were given. The programme was as follows:

PART FIRST.

1. Quartette—"What I live for" ... Grannis — Company.
2. Quartette—"Come Holy Spirit," ... Warren
3. Soprano Solo—"See, 'tis the hour," ... Donizetti — Miss Anna M. Hyers.
4. Quartette—"Inching along," ... Jubilee — Company.
5. Tenor Solo—"Consider the Lilies" ... Topliff — Mr. Wallace King.
6. Quartette—"Hear my prayer," ... Southard — Company.

PART SECOND.

1. Inflammatus—"Stabat Mater" ... Rossini — Company.
2. Baritone Solo—"The Bell Ringer," ... Wallace — Mr. John W. Luca.
3. Quartette—"Great Camp Meeting" ... Jubilee
4. Trio—"God is Love" ... Abbott — Messrs King and Luca, and Miss Anna M. Hyers.
5. Quartette—"Sweetly, Softly," ... Bliss
6. Contralto Solo—"Like a Dream," ... Flotow — Miss Emma L. Hyers.
7. Finale—"Good Night" ... Flotow — Company.

There were two changes from the programme as printed, "The Last Rose of Summer" being substituted for "See 'tis the Hour," and "Flee as a Bird," being given in place of "Like a Dream." This is the fourth concert given by this Company in Bangor within a short time, the impression made by them being decidedly favorable.

THE GEORGIA MINSTRELS.

This popular organization will give entertainments at Norombega Hall Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week. They are spoken of in the highest terms by the leading metropolitan critics and by the press generally. Seats can be secured at Bugbee's.

MAINE STATE COLLEGE.

The Able and Instructive Baccalaureate Sermon Delivered by President Allen at Orono Last Evening.

At 7 o'clock last evening Rev. C. F. Allen, D. D., President of the Maine State College, delivered the Baccalaureate sermon in the Town Hall to a large congregation. The following is a very brief report:

"The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment."—Luke, 12.23.

In the midst of a gospel sermon to a great concourse of people, so numerous that they trode one upon another, He who spake as never man spake was rudely interrupted by a worldling in the crowd, who demanded that the Great Teacher should stop and settle in favor of the claimant in some contested probate business. "Speak to my brother that he divide the inheritance with me." His greed of gold must be satisfied at the expense of his soul's salvation. The world's redemption must be postponed to secure for one who probably already had too much wealth, a larger estate and more encumbrance.

The Saviour rebuked the impudence of such a request on such an occasion, and turning the thoughts of the vast multitude to the folly of covetousness, described the rich man safely investing his superabundant harvests in larger barns and foolishly congratulating his soul on a full supply of sensual enjoyment, while he had made no provision for the higher demands of an immortal nature.

Applying the subject to his more immediate disciples, our Lord warned them of the danger of losing sight of higher spiritual good in the care for outward happiness and to remember that unseen things are the most important. The life is more than the food that sustains it; the clothes we wear are of less value than the protected body. But in this age of modern learning we are assured that both the doctrine of the supreme importance of spiritual things and the illustration of our Saviour are alike unphilosophical.

The great doctrine of our day is the reality and universality of force only. Matter, the old idol of skeptics is but crystallized force. The properties of matter are modified conditions of the same principle. In their correlation, light, heat, electricity and attraction are modes of motion. Above these, in the realm of chemical action, the same force producing all the marvels in the retorts of the laboratory or in the myriad alembics of nature, has sole sovereign and subject, and like the magnificent French despot, exclaims, "I am the State." In pantheistic adoration of the god of forces, a god whom his fathers knew not the scientist asserts that life is only a mode of motion; chemical action not only sustains vitality but produces it; that whether in the protoplasm that lives and dies within the limits of a single cell or in the complex organism of the beating heart and busy brain of man, life is not only the same principle but is only another name for force essential to all matter; and, therefore, life is not more than meat, for life is only one form of motion applicable to all meat. If this were true, we have but to apply the proper manifestation of force, and new forms of life should start forth obedient to the human will. But in vain the steaming cauldron is watched by the witch-deceived daughter for life to return to the dissevered members of her father. In vain the deluded savage watched for the germination of the grains of gunpowder which he had been told to plant, and just as vainly has science watched for manufactured life.

In the laboratories of the chemist, with all the elements and proximate principles of organic substances, and having command of all the forces of heat, electricity and magnetism the philosopher has not yet succeeded in producing life. The naturalist may show how to apply the agents necessary to develop the germ into a living organism, but he cannot create the germ. Here baffled science should stand back, as did the juggling magicians of Egypt in their contest with Jehovah's messenger, and exclaim, "This is the finger of God!" "The life is more than meat:" food may sustain it and chemical forces minister to it. It is itself a force but is not to be confounded with other manifestations of energy.

But there is truth in the great doctrine inculcated by our Saviour as well as in the illustration employed. A truth that in the hurry and bustle of this utilitarian age, when the grandest triumphs of the human intellect are found in the increase of material prosperity, should be clearly and forcibly presented. The superior importance of spiritual interests is to be urged against the metaphysical and physiological materialism, which either from idealistic assumptions of the identity of the spiritual judgments and emotions with bodily functions, or from a limited cycle of physiological facts, reaches the same conclusion that there is neither angel nor spirit, neither soul nor God. The great truth presented is to dissipate the errors of those who, by a too literal interpretation of the divine record, make heaven a paradise of sensual delights, God a material [illegible], the soul only capable of existence in connection with the body, and that it sleeps on unconscious after death till the body is raised at the last day. The various forms of worldliness in theory and practice are also condemned. The rich man investing in larger barns his treasures, is no more selfish than the [illegible] with his broad phylacteries; the oppressive publican is no more obnoxious than he who glides over the robbery of widows and orphans with long prayers.

"As [illegible] of our Lord are pregnant with meaning and [illegible] to the present condition of man [illegible] and equally [illegible] of meat everywhere and to the conditions of all ages. With a foresight of all [illegible] they have infinite springs of doctrine to water the church in every part. The devout heart dwells upon them with rapture. There are certain tendencies of the present age to which we do well to give heed, and we should try our course by some infallible standard, lest borne insensibly away by the deceitful current we miss the desired haven.

The magnetic needle, touched with the mysterious power, trembles and oscillates, often passing and repassing the meridian line, till at last it settles in its position. Electric storms, otherwise unappreciated, disturb its repose morning and evening, bring new changes, and beyond these transitory influences, the vast sweep of centuries make secular variations. Where once the compass pointed to the east of the true meridian, it now points with increased divergence to the west; thus it will go on until it has reached the extreme, and then turning, will slowly retrace its course, and completing the vast cycle, it will reach the former extreme eastern variation.

So in the great movements of human thought—each individual has his own uncertainties. The bright morn of youth, and the evening shadows of age, modify our opinions, while storms of passion disturb our judgment. But beyond all these are the great surges of popular sentiment, swaying all towards one extreme, and then slowly turning, rest not till they reach the opposite maximum of error. The worshipper at the shrine of truth must beware of this tendency of the age in which he lives. The philosopher who originated methods of investigation which laid the foundation of modern science, warns all scholars to avoid the prejudices arising from our humanity, from our nationality, from current phrases, and from dreamy theories, or in his own quaint language: "The votary of truth should beware of the idols of the den, idols of the tribe, idols of the market place, and idols of the theatre." The philosopher should also have included idols of the stream, for other divinities than Venus spring from the foam of the crested wave that marks the great currents in the ocean of life. Like opposite polar forces whose combinations produce all the harmonies of nature, are those great principles in the moral life whose segregation has produced the discords and convulsions of society.

Liberty and law, conservatism and reform, the practical and the ideal, faith and reason, science and tradition, are opposite principles in the proper combination of which truth is alone discovered. The whole sweep of the age in thought and action is toward the practical; these ideals only are tolerated which can become embodied in some useful, practical, visible result. The business of life is all for physical advancement and one has no business to think of other employments than those that increase these outward riches. The term wealth has lost its old significance of a state of well being, and is only applied to bartered commodities. Worth is following in the same train, for a poor man is not considered of any worth. Value is only what anything will bring in the market. If it were only for a satirical use of terms properly pertaining to moral qualities, these words were degraded to their accustomed and improper signification, we might pass it by as a singular freak of language. But the words unfortunately do convey the precise sentiments of the mass of the community, showing that the mind is of the earth, earthy, and wherever the lower desires are made supreme, "the serpent's trail is o'er it all." For the thought is as degraded as the term. The whole preparation of life,—the end the aim,—is to get a living,—as if life consisted in the abundance of things possessed.

Character itself is considered venal in public life, and the old adage of Walpole,—once heard at Westminster, now from congressional halls, is re-echoed "Every man has his price." Curious schemes, that look like mingled bribery and speculation, are resorted to to secure money from the public treasury. Sinecures are unearthed and dishonesties exposed, and now there is no discrimination in the reproaches heaped indiscriminately on the evil and the just. The foulness of the slanders heaped on the pure in high places, the gross exaggerations made for political effect, are but indicative of the heart of covetousness that indites the calumnies.

The education for the times must be practical, and to the great mass, practical means that kind of a training that will secure the largest pecuniary result. To make the God-like intellect more keen in its subtle discrimination, to lend more vigor to its wings that with stronger, bolder flight it may make more adventurous voyages and sweep in broader circles round the distant shores; and all, that the keen vision may detect the veins of hidden ore, that in adventurous voyage the heavy-freighted argosy may bring barbaric pearl and gold. That bloated wealth can gloat on larger bonds and hoarded gold,—spoils wrung from the hands of want.

The practical man of former days could find no worth in the higher studies of geometry or algebra; anything beyond the rules for casting interest was not necessary for the commercial college. But when the higher mathematics gave the mariner his charts and tables and infallible rules, they were admitted as practical studies. Chemistry, that shows us how to cook our food, or make and dye our clothes, is entitled to a practical study.

Such a low view of a practical education is incompatible with any correct appreciation of mental worth. "The life is more than meat." Those studies that best ennoble and refine the soul, fill it with brighter, better, more enlarged thought, make it more vigorous to think, more correct to decide, more capable to enjoy. These are the appropriate aliment to feed the higher life. All truly practical studies, that method which shall make the treasures of knowledge really the students' own possession; which shall enable him to assimilate the food he receives from books and the ripened observation of a cultivated intellect; that which brings into exercise his capacities, that disciplines, energizes, vitalizes his whole spiritual nature, that and that only is practical education.

The new education is not a warped, one-sided professional training. It seeks not to intensify the whole activities of our nature on the attainment of mere special success in one department by contracting into a narrow channel all the broad currents of life. It comes to teach the laborer not only how more efficiently to wield the implements of toil, but to teach him the psalm of life, the grand harmonies of that song, first heard

"When the radiant morn of creation broke,
And the world in the smile of God awoke."

When the morning stars sang together and the sons of God shouted for joy. The soul untaught and rude is almost like the clod the rude swain turns with his plow-share and treads upon. Education comes like Ithuriel's spear, whose touch can startle from the abject forms of the mere animal to the fullness of his true position. The eye dull and listless beams with spiritual significance, the vacant countenance is radiant with thought. The outward form partakes of the energy of newly awakened sentiment; it is not alone to make him a more successful farmer, nor to teach him greater dexterity in his art; it is to make him an educated man. The new education says to the son of toil, "I know your aspirations; I know the old traveled path is long and far from your life's duties. Come with me, I'll make these duties your lesson, the very obstacles shall be stepping stones in your way. Others may enter the temple of learning from the eastern gate, but introduced by me, Science shall discover to you her secret treasures though you have not learned the language of the old masters. You may cull some of the flowers of literature, and learn the songs of the anointed ones. It is not a mere question of subsistence; it is this full, rich intellectual life, that is more than meat."

Every country has its own peculiar national life distinct from that of others, and while maintaining the principles of its nationality it shows sufficient reason for its separate existence. But if the national spirit is destroyed, no organization can prevent decay; it soon becomes absorbed in other countries, or is lost in the dark night of anarchy. Of every lost empire it may truly be said, so long as it was true to its own life, so long as the principle that called it into existence was preserved, so long it was impregnable. No weapon formed against it could prosper. Losing the vital principle, it is destroyed by the most despicable foreign foe, or is the prey of domestic strife.

The wandering Hebrew was called from his distant home and on him by the oath of God was bestowed the promised land, that a nation might be planted who should [illegible] ... Forgetful of their mission, the national life was gone, and they soon found wherever the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered together.

The bright land of classic song had its own clear national life, brilliant with the radiance of oratory, poetry, philosophy and art; animated with its peculiar heroic life it rolled back the surges of despotism, and showed how patriot freemen could die at Thermopylae and conquer at Marathon. When the nation forgot the lessons of Plato, and the truths the half-divine old Socrates had taught; when science ceased to crown her votaries, and public spirit was corrupted by foreign luxuries and foreign gold, the life of the nation was gone, and it mattered little what despot held the sway when the nation perished.

The mission of Rome was to teach the subjected nations law, and thus to extend the boundaries of justice over the world. Her highest officers were taught to scrupulously regard every edict that had passed the Senate. While the safety of the State was to the Roman law-maker the supreme law, individual interests were subordinated to the public welfare. So long as her rulers were animated by this national spirit, her greatness was inviolate. When ambition and lust of personal aggrandizement destroyed the national spirit, struck with the fatal disease, she lingered a thousand years in the death struggle.

Chivalry was the soul of Spanish civilization. How brilliant the picture in the days of old renown of gallant lord, and stalwart knight, of deeds of high emprise! By the pungent humor of Cervantes the old Castile life was made ridiculous, the knightly courtesy and honor was made the scoff of the mocker, and the national spirit was broken down, and the nation itself, like a stranded hulk, seeks with convulsive throes to rise once more among the nations.

England has her mission, the bulwark of the Protestant faith and the home of civil rights wrested by slow concessions from the hand of power. The home of the Magna Charta, the jury, and an independent judiciary, her mission is to secure the rights of the humble from the rapacity of the powerful, to blend respect for old institutions with the growing claims of the people. Faithful to her national spirit she may live in power. Our fathers were animated by one grand o'er mastering desire to establish a christian democracy in the new world. Blindly the young giant has stumbled sometimes in the exceeding brilliancy of the light and now we may apply the words of Milton and say: "Methinks I see in my mind, a noble and puissant nation rousing like a strong man after sleep and shaking her invincible locks. Methinks I see her as an eagle renewing her mighty youth and kindling her undazzled eyes at the full mid-day beam, purging her long abused sight at the fountain itself of heavenly radiance. While the whole noise of timorous flocking birds, with those also that love the twilight, flutter about amazed at what she means."

We have our duty to do as Christians, patriots, and scholars to our country. It is ours to nourish its life and guard it sedulously from all dangers that beset us. No slimy serpent must throw its folds around our country. Ignorance, superstition, vice, must not be allowed to fester unmolested in our midst. Corruption must not be permitted in our high places, and party venom not tolerated by educated minds. Far removed from stupid indifference and blinded party rage we are to seek the highest welfare of our country.

Thou living dead man! let thy spirit leap
Forth to the day, and let the fresh air blow
Through thy soul's shut up mansion. Wouldst thou know
Something of what is life, shake off this death.
Have thy soul feel the universal breath
With which all nature's quick, and learn to be
Sharer in all that thou dost touch or see.
Break from thy body's grasp thy spirit's trance.
Give thy soul air, thy faculties expanse.
Love, joy, even sorrow,—yield thyself to all.
They make thy freedom, groveller, not thy thrall.
Knock off the shackles which thy spirit bind
To dust and sense, and set at large the mind.
Then move in sympathy with God's great whole,
And be like man at first, a living soul.

But vain is the invocation, without some life-giving energy imparted. It is only a misty, vague, impression, of something desirable, but inaccessible. We need the more direct authoritative command. "Awake thou that sleepest and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee life. He will render to every man according to his deeds. To them who by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory, and honor, and immortality, eternal life."

To that higher religious life to which all are called I must especially allude at this time. He came to our life to impart His own quickening spirit, by which alone we can live to God. This life is high above all comparison and without that Christ-life all is yet dead that pertains to the highest sphere of spiritual existence. A new birth introduces a new life—which, though unknown to those who know it not by experience of its own peculiar energy—yet the humblest child of the heavenly kingdom may assuredly speak of its reality and say "We speak that we know."

That life is life indeed—more than all the paraphernalia of pomp and vanities, more than culture and broad intelligence, it is the union of our life with the great source of life—a whole eternity of life and all that life is love.

Members of the Graduating Class. A larger wave—you reach the same shore your predecessors have reached; and are soon to give place to a still higher succeeding wave; but not like the dull insensate waters, that leave no trace behind them, your high-water mark is known and read of all. The names apparently written on the shifting sands, and which seem destined soon to be blotted out by succeeding waves are as imperishable as fossil imprints preserved in rocky strata. The four years spent here are not like other portions of your life already half forgotten. There is something in the services of this hour that make the lesson a part of yourselves, and you feel that life is more than meat. The culture you have received and the thoughts you have garnered up are no passing moods to be shaken off at pleasure—they are a part of your life,—the discipline you have attained and the knowledge you have acquired is not lost as the foam of the wave that breaks on the beach. You take with you through your voyage over all the broad ocean of life the spoils won by an honorable contest in the toil, and protracted study of a college course.

Youthful affections, generous impulses, high ideas, and ambitious aspirations are in vain to exempt you from the common lot of drudgery to get a living. Life to you is real—but let not the generous enthusiasm decay. Especially keep the jewel bright and untarnished. You have learned that right and wrong are no varying caprices of a half-illumined mind, but is sacred, eternal, immutable distinction in the nature of things. To follow the right, popular or unpopular, polite or unpolite, pleasant or unpleasant, is better than costly sacrifice or ostentatious worship. Be not so gross in your conceptions as to doubt for one moment the bright ideals that intuitively spring up in every soul not crusted over with sensualism and depravity. There are such realities as conscience, honor, truth and virtue. In the light celestial wisdom imparts to every humble, contrite soul, may you discern the higher life that Christ imparts—above the darkness and the gloom it shines. Celestial love invites you to take this life as yours, receive it as the gift He came to proffer. Wherefore do you spend money for that which is not bread? and labor for that which satisfieth not?

In this interesting hour may the loving Jesus not turn sadly away and say of any of us, "Ye will not come unto me that ye may have life."

A private letter received in Sheffield, Eng., from one of the crew of the iron ship Glance, of London, which arrived in the Thames from Adelaide on Thursday, gives intelligence of a terrible event which recently occurred at sea. On the 27th ultimo the Glance passed an out-bound vessel, bearing the name of Jesse Osborne, and was hailed by the captain of the latter ship, who reported that one of his crew had gone mad; that for for five days the maniac had stationed himself aloft, and that nothing could induce him to return to deck. The captain further reported that the madman had armed himself with a large chisel with which he was cutting the ropes, and that the boatswain had tried to bring him down. The maniac, however, threw a block at the boatswain, knocking him on the deck and breaking his arm and leg. As a matter of safety to the vessel and crew, the captain of the Jesse Osborne considered that it was necessary to shoot the maniac, and after some consultation that course was decided upon. The captain and officers of the Glance were requested to be present as witnesses, and in their presence the man was shot with a revolver. In consequence of the way in which he moved about the rigging three shots had to be fired before he was fatally injured. He fell dead on deck, and his body was eventually thrown overboard.—London Times, 17th.

Many who are suffering from the effects of the warm weather and are debilitated, are advised by physicians to take moderate amounts of whisky two or three times during the day. In a little while those who adopt this advice frequently increase the number of "drinks," and in time become confirmed inebriates. A beverage which will not create thirst for intoxicating liquors and which is intended especially for the benefit of debilitated persons whether at home or abroad is Dr. Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic. Containing the juices of many medicinal herbs, this preparation does not create an appetite for the intoxicating cup. The nourishing and life-supporting properties of many valuable natural productions contained in it and well known to medical men have a most strengthening influence. A single bottle of the Tonic will demonstrate its valuable qualities. For debility arising from sickness, over exertion or from any cause whatever a wineglassful of Sea Weed Tonic taken after meals will strengthen the stomach and create an appetite for wholesome food. To all who are about leaving their homes, we desire to say that the excellent effects of Dr. Schenck's seasonable remedies, Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills, are particularly evident when taken by those who are injuriously affected by a change of water and diet. No person should leave home without taking a supply of these safeguards along. For sale by all Druggists. [illegible]

A GOOD FOR EVIL.

BY A. S. NEIL.

A feeble grub, from out the crowd
Of humming insects flew,
He sought repose within a rose,
He scorned the "vulgar crew."

His coat of mail, with burnished scale,
With flashing green and gold
In jewelled crest and glossy vest
Surpassed the knight of old.

In regal style he thought to while
The pleasant hours away,
And his commands the insect bands
He thought should all obey.

To his surprise two roguish eyes
Peeped at him with a leer,
"I was ... be cried, "I can't abide

Has shocked my cultured taste

Tyler R. Wasgatt, Jr., of Hampden, in the county of Penobscot, by his deed dated June 7th, A. D. 1873, and recorded in the Registry of Deeds for Penobscot County, book 433, page ..., conveyed to George F. Wood and James M. Swett the undersigned, in mortgage, three undivided quarters of a certain lot or parcel of land, situate in said Hampden, together with three fourths of all the buildings and wharves, also undivided, thereon standing, bounded and described by warranty deed from said James M. Swett to said Tyler R. Wasgatt, Jr., bearing date of July 3, 1871, to which deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the premises. And the condition of said mortgage having been broken, we, the undersigned, by reason thereof claim a foreclosure.

GEORGE F. WOOD,
JAMES M. SWETT,
By T. W. VOSE, their Attorney.
Bangor June 4, 1875. e3w*

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot:

The undersigned, administrator of the estate of Levi Lancaster, Jr., late of Maxfield, in said county, deceased, respectfully represents that the goods and chattels, rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay his just debts and charges of administration by the sum of two hundred and ninety nine dollars.

Wherefore your petitioner prays your Honor to grant him a license to sell, at public or private sale, and convey all of the real estate of which said Levi Lancaster, Jr., died seized and possessed, the same being situated in the said town of Maxfield, as by a partial sale of any certain portion thereof, the residue would be greatly depreciated in value, to satisfy said debts, expenses of sale, and charges of administration.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of the routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holidays and Sundays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M. Also open evenings from 7½ to 8½ P. M.

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window, when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $32.50 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such Stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.
